To the Reader.

Orasmuch (Christian Reader) as there are diuers of the singing Psalmes much out of vse onely because of the difficultie of their tunes: And forasmuch as the moſte of them are of thoſe 15. Psalmes, which are called Psalmes of Degrees, that is, very excellent Psalmes, and extraordinarily penned by the wiſdom of the holy Ghoſt. I haue (by the helpe of God) reduced nyne of them (which I take to be all wherein any difficulty of tune conſiſteth) into Engliſh meter fitting the common tunes. The which at the earnest request of di-uers my godly & learned friends, I haue caused to be printed: wher-in, as I haue principally sought the glorye of God, and thy spirituall comfort, so I pray thee accept ther of in such Christian loue, as I haue laboured to effect this small peece of seruice vnto thee, without im-puting either presumption or rash-nes vnto me. For the Lord knoweth, that in the simplicitie of my hart I haue done it, and in all submission to the better learned, of whome I hope that God wil raise some, better to perform this work.

Thus beseeching the Almighty to fill thy hart with all spirituall comfort, meete for thee in his infinite wisdom, I commend thee to his grace.

Psalme 104.

An excellent Psalme to praise God for the creation of the world, & gouernance of the same by his maruelous providence. 35. Wherin the Prophet praieth against the wicked, who are occasion that God diminisheth his blessings.

Sing this in the tune of the
25. Psalme.

My soule, Iehoua praise,
O Lord my gracious God
With glorie, honour, and greatnesse Thou art most richlie clad.
2 Which conereth with light Himselfe as with array:
And spreadeth out the heauens bright Like courtaines faire and gay.
3 Which layeth his chamber beames Within the waters faire:
And walketh on the wings of windes,

1. My soule prais thou the Lord: O Lord my God,
thou art exceeding great, thou art clothed with glory, & honour.
2. Which coue-reth himself with light as with a garment, & spreadeth out the hea-uens like a cour-aine.

3. Which laieth the beames of his chambers in the waters, and

riot, and walketh
vpon the wings
of the windes.
4 Which ma-keth his spirites his messengers, & a flaming fire his ministers.

5 He let the earth vpon her foundations, so that it shal neuer
moue.

6 Thou courest it with the deepe
as with a garment: the waters would stand aboue the moun-taines.

7 But at thy rebuke they fle, at the voice of thy thunder they haste away.

8 And the moun-taines ascend, & the vallies descend to the place which thou hast established for them.

9 But thou hast set them a bond which they shall

The cloudes his Chariots are.
4 Which by his power doeth make The Spirites his messengers,
And eke ordayned flaming fire
To be his ministers.

5 He set the earth on her foundations firme and sure So that it neuer shall remoue but constantly endure.

6 Thou coueredst it with deepe
As with a garment wyde:
And so aboue the mountaines then
The waters did abyde.

7 But they at thy rebuke Doe flee and haste away:
Euen at the voyce of thy thunder, they passe without delay.

8 The mountaines high ascend, and eke the vallies lowe Descend into the place which thou, appointedst for them so.

9 But thou hast set a bound Which they shall neuer passe:

Betwene the mountaines flowe.*

11 *They shall giue drinke to all The sundrie beastes in field:
And with their moisture quench the thirst
Of all the Asse wilde.*

12 *By these springs shall the birdes
And fowles of heauen dwell:
And sing among the branches such Sweet songs as doe excell.*

13 *He watereth from his cloudes, The mountaines huge and hye:
With fruite of thy works thou hast filde
The earth most plenteously.*

14 *He causeth grasse and hearbe For man and beast to growe:
That he may bring most wholesome bread,
Out of the earth also.*

10 He sendeth
the springs into the vallies which runne betwene
the mountaines.

giue drinke to all the beastes of the field, and the wilde asses shal quench their thirst.

12 By these springs shall the fowles of the heauen dwell, & sing
among the branches.

is filled with the fruite of thy

Birds may make their nests there

leth in the Firre
trees.

18. The high mountaines are
for the Goates:
the rockes are a refuge for the Conies.

19. He appointed the moon for certaine seasons,
the Sunne knoweth his going downe.

20. Thou makest darknesse, &
it is dark, wherein all the beastes of the Forrest creep forth.

15 And maketh strong and glade
The hart with bread and wyne:
And with his pleasant oyle doth make the face of man to shyne.

16 The trees of Libanon,
The Cedars high and tall Are satisfied from his hand,
Which hath them planted all.

17 (That there the Birdes may build, And boldly make their nest:)
The Storke in firre trees eke doth dwell,
And there doth safely rest.

18 The hilles and stony rocks,
A refuge of delight,
Are for the Conies and the Goates,
To vse by day or night.

19 For certaine seasons he Appointed hath the Moone:
The Sunne also full well doth know His place of going downe.

20 Thou onely makest darke
The time which we call night:
Wherein the beastes of Forrests all,
Creep forth for their delight.

And still doe waite and seeke for all Their foode and meate from God.
22 But when the shyning Sunne Doth ryse, then they retire:
And swiftly to their dennes doe run, Whereas they couched were.

23 Then goeth the painfull man Forth to his toyle some warke:
And to his labour till the night
Preuent him with the darke.

The third part.

24 O Lorde how many are Thy workes in wisdom made Thou hast them all: and ceke the earth Thy wealth doth ouerspread.

The Seas so large and wyde:
Where liuing creatures numberlesse Both small and great abyde.

man forth to his worke, and to his labour untill
the euenng.

24. O Lord, how manifold are thy workes in wis-
dome: hast thou made them all the earth is full of thy riches.

25. So is the great therein are things

creeping, innum-

small beasts and great.

That thou mayest them relieue
With such suffising foode as thou In season dost them giue.*

28 Thou giuest to them &
they gather it:
thou openest thine hand, and they are filled with good things 29 But if thou
hyde thy face,
they are troubled:
if thou take away their breath
they die, and return to their dust

Thou openest thine hand and then Fild with good things they be.
29 But if thou hyde thy face
They are sore troubled all:
And if thou take away their breath,
To dust anone they fall.*

*30 Againe, if thou send forth That powerfull Spirit of thine,
They are created, and thou dost Renew the earth againe.*

2 The works of the Lord are great, and ought to be sought out of all them that loue them.

3 His worke is beautifull & glorious, and his righteousnes endureth for euer.

4 He made his wonderful works
to be had in remembrance: the Lord is mercifull
and full of compassion.

5 He hath giuen a portion to them that feare
him: he wil euer be mindful of his covenant.

6 He hath shewed to his people
the power of his workes, in giuing vnto them the heritage of the heathen.

7 The works of his hands are truth and iudge-ment, all his statutes are true.

2 The wondrous works of God the Lord
In greatnesse doe excede:

And all men ought to seeke them out,
That loue them well indeede.

3 His worke is full of beautie, and Of glorie riche in store:

His righteousness most righteously, Endureth euermore.

4 His wondrous works he made that we Should euer them remember:

Full of compassion is he And mercifull for euer.

5 A portion faire he hath bestow'd On them that doe him dreede:

And mindefull of his covenant
He euer is indeede.

6 His powersfull workes to Israell
He graciously hath shew'd:

In that the Heathens heritage
He hath on them bestow'd.

7 His handie workes are equitie,
And iudgement: iust are found

His statutes all most plenteously In truerh do still abound.

8 They

PSALME CXX.

For euer and for aye:

And eke are done in equitie,
And in the truerh alway.

His Couenant shall endure

For euer. By diuine precept His Name is fearefull sure.

10 His feare true wisdom doth beginne, His Lawes obserue doe they That any vnderstanding haue, His praise doth last for aye.

*3 Thy tongue still vsed to deceit, What doth it thee auail?
Thus of thy falshood to entreate,
How shouldest thou preuaile?*

4 It is as the sharp arrowes of a mightie man,
and as the coales
of Iuniper,

*4 It pearceth like the arrowes sharpe Shot by a man of might:
It wounds the simple harmelesse hart:
Lyke coales and fire so bright.*

sech, and dwell in the tents of Kedar.

With him that doth not cease,
To shew the hatred of his hart Against the man of peace.*

7 I seek peace,
& when I speak thereof, they are bent to warre.

I speake for amitie:
But they the more to warres are bent
In all extremitie.*

Their seede doe spread and sowe:

Shall reape in ioy assuredlie,
Our God shall worke it so.

6 They weeping went and precious seede, They carried forth with them:
But shall returne with ioy and bring Their beanie sheaves againe.

Psalme Cxxx.

The people of God from their bottomlesse miseries do cry vnto God, and are heard. 3. They confesse their sinnes, and flee vnto Gods mercies.

Psal. 130.
1 Out of the deepe places
haue I called vn-
to thee.
2 Lord beare my voice, let thine eares at-

Wherew I nowe doe lye:
To thee, O Lord, for some reliefe, I doe both call and cry.

2 Lord beare my voice, grant my request Which I doe make to thee:

And

PSALME CXXX.

And let thy gracious eares be prest,
To my lowde sounding cry.

3 If thou, O Lord, do straitlie marke, Our fowle iniquitie:

O Lord who can before thee stand, Excused for to be.

4 But mercy and compassion, O Lord are still with thee:

That men may lone and feare the Name Of thy great Maiesty.

5 I haue attended still vpon Thy holy will, O Lord,
My soule hath waited, and I haue Still trusted in his word.

6 No watchman more desirouslie, Doth watch for dawning day,
Then doth my soule in constancie, Waite on the Lord alway.

7 Let Israell waite on the Lord, Whose mercy doth abound:
And with the Lord redemption great of my praiers.

3 If thou, O Lord
straitly markest
iniquities, O Lord
who shal stand.

4 But mercy is with thee, that thou maist be feared.

5 I haue wayred on the Lord, my soule hath way-ted, and I haue trusted in his worde.

6 My soule wai-teth on the Lord more then the

demption.

8 And hee shall redeeme Israell
from all his ini-quities.

Is euer to be found.

8 *And he shall save his Israell,
From all their sinnes redeemes
And purge from all iniquities, Them that doe trust in him.*
